

STUDY CASE

EruditeWorks

THE BUSINESS CHALLENGE

It is an NGO working to help kids from low-income families participate in youth sports by providing financial assistance. They wanted us to better design the system that can be used to manage various programs. They were struggling with data management, integration and better reporting

OUR APPROACH

Team at the Erudite Works helped them with better data management by providing solution that was scalable and reusable. We built custom schedulable classes that could transform data as requested by the client. The solution could be re-used by different programs that the company is catering to. We also built more responsive lightning communities for the stakeholders for a better overall experience. We also helped them with better reporting on the existing data by using report charts and dashboards.

THE OUTCOME

The implementation resulted in lesser data loss when the information was coming from the website to Salesforce. The implementation of better business processes resulted in cleaner data which is easier to understand by the stakeholders. Better reporting resulted in easier management and hence impacted revenue for good.
